II. Communication with Accounting Firm

The financial data related to this performance estimate has not been audited by certified public accountants. The Company has had preliminary communication with the accounting firm regarding the performance estimate, and there are no significant differences between the two parties.

III. Reasons for Performance Changes

In 2025, the Company's 16 million tons/year Shenghong integrated refining and chemical integration project and other industrial segments has been operating smoothly, with a balanced production and sales. Since the beginning of 2025, the central crude oil price has been gradually declining, and the price level of petrochemical products has generally shifted downward. Faced with a complex external environment, the Company has implemented multiple measures, including optimizing crude oil procurement strategies, strengthening synergies across industrial segments, adjusting product output structures, and diversifying downstream high-value-added chemical product offerings. As a result, the Company's overall profitability has improved compared to the same period last year.

IV. Risk Warning

This performance estimate is the result of the preliminary estimate by the Company's finance department, and the specific financial data shall be subject to the 2025 annual report disclosed by the Company. Please invest rationally and be mindful of risks.

This is hereby announced.
